This enhanced review mode not only reviews 2D drawings, but also 3D graphics. You can review surfaces, faces, and solid models, and detect issues like omitted faces, extra faces, intersecting faces, and false faces. See our post to learn more about the enhancements to Markup Import and Markup Assist. Coordinate Geometry Engine: Show complex coordinates using descriptive data such as elevation, azimuth, and height to quickly and accurately draw elevation, azimuth, and height.

The new Coordinate Geometry Engine allows you to draw complex features such as towers, bridges, and building balconies. It works in the same way as the Drafting Assistant or Snap Creation tools to allow you to generate multiple features on a drawing with just a single command. See our post about the new Coordinate Geometry Engine for details.

Dependencies for 360°: The new Dependencies for 360° tool in the Application Programming Interface (API) allows users to control drawing/print layouts based on the number of sheets and the page size. Select the surface view or sheet view that's used when the page is printed or when an object is placed on paper. Also, you can set the priority order of sheets, based on page-layout properties such as the header and footer. See our post for more details.

Features: You can change the UI for both real and virtual machines on your PC. For real machines, you can change the look and feel of the menus, toolbars, and objects in the CAD application. For virtual machines, you can choose between the standard and enhanced user interface. The application's user interface (UI) can be changed easily in the Preferences | Operating System | Windows UIs Settings | Operating System | Settings | Other tabs. There are many UI options available, and most of them are not enabled by default. The Windows UI Settings options provide the ability to change the appearance of the menus, toolbars, and windows.
